FROM THE DESK OF RC

Dear Readers,

As Bihar Bhawan, New Delhi is rolling out the newest iteration of e-newsletter for the month of August, I truly appreciate and acknowledge your engagement and participation that resulted into a successful series of e-newsletter for the last 6 months.

This edition is focused on the launch of 'Janata Darbar', (Janta Ke Darbar Ke Chief Minister) programme launched by the Hon'ble Chief Minister Shri Nitish Kumar in Patna. Readers get to see the insights of the directions given by the Hon'ble CM and his positive connect with the people of Bihar.

Updates from diverse fields of agriculture, education technology, health, transport and environment are covered in this volume.

Midst the onset of 2nd wave of pandemic and its decline, some young and dynamic administrative officers and health workers championed the task of saving lives with their utmost dedication and commitment. We are pleased to cover how Khagaria, East Champaran, Gaya, Darbhanga and other districts implemented innovative models to mitigate the Covid crisis and contain the spread of corona virus.

World Health Organization South-East Asia recognised such efforts and lauded Bihar's Bankatwa block for its vaccination model. Khagaria's 'Nauka Par Teeka', Gaya's Team Valor, and Darbhanga's 7 hour long Midnight Oxygen operation are the testimonials of selfless public service which we feel elated to highlight in our e-newsletter.

You would be aware that Bihar Bhawan regularly promotes folk art and artists of Bihar. This edition also carries the information of a viral Mithila painting with a very strong message on vaccination awareness that broke the internet overnight.

Friends, as India gears up to commemorate the 75th Independence Day on 15th August 2021, Bihar Bhawan sends warm wishes to you and appeal to make it special by resolving to do anything or everything for the greater good. Let's celebrate this #AzadiKaAmrutMahotsav with immense pride and continue to make positive changes around us.

#Azadi Ka Amrit Mahotsav 7 SONS OF BIHAR WHO DIED DEFENDING THE TRICOLOR

Patna's iconic Shaheed Smarak or Martyr's Memorial

If you have ever visited through the city's corridors, you are no stranger to the life-size bronze statues of seven men. Dressed in dhoti-kurtas with the quintessential Gandhi topi (cap), the statues face the Old Patna Secretariat, a symbol of the event that transpired 76 years ago.

Here's the lesser-known story.

It was the morning of 11th August 1942, three days after the Quit India Movement was launched.

At the time, over 6,000 students rushed into the gates of the erstwhile Patna Secretariat. They bore no arms and had a singular objective—to hoist the flag on the building of the Secretariat, without causing any damage—neither to lives nor the public property. It was also a reaction to the imprisonment of eminent Gandhian Dr Anugrah Narain, when he tried to unfurl the national flag in Patna.

But the British were firm in their resolve to sabotage the movement. Their Military Police, under the command of the District Magistrate W G Archer, was tasked with nipping the movement in the bud. The Force tried to keep the students from reaching the Secretariat until 2 in the noon, but despite the resistance, the students marched on.

Archer knew their strength was unmatched. He decided to open fire. But alas, the Brit Magistrate had forgotten that the men in his own police were Indians. When the Bihar Military Police and the Rajputs put their guns down, the British decided to use the loyalty of the Gurkhas against the students. They did not fire on the crowd directly. Their shots were measured and targeted at the group which broke away from the crowd. They wanted to kill the one bearing the flag. But the spirit of the men was such that when one flag-bearer was gunned down, he passed the flag on to his companion.

The companion too was pushed to the ground by the barrage of bullets. By the time the gunshots stopped, all seven were dead. Martyred in the name of the flag they wanted to hoist atop the Secretariat.

The seven martyred students were later identified as:

- Umakant Prasad Sinha (Raman Ji) – Ram Mohan Roy Seminary, Class IX, Narendrapur, Saran
- Ramanand Singh – Ram Mohan Roy Seminary, Class IX, Sahadat Nagar, Patna
- Satish Prasad Jha – Patna Collegiate School, Class X, Khadahara, Bhagalpur
- Jagatpati Kumar – Bihar National College, Second year, Kharati, Aurangabad
- Devipada Choudhry – Miller High English School, Class IX, Silhat, Jamalpur
- Rajendra Singh – Patna High English School, Class X, Banwari Chak, Saran
- Ramgovind Singh – Punpun High English School, Class IX, Dasharatha, Patna

While the oldest among them was a college student, the rest were only young boys, no older than 17 studying in classes 9 or 10. But even as young as these men were, they became symbols of New India which was unafraid and reveled in its freedom.

The story of these seven martyrs was immortalized.

But an eighth hero was lost to the pages of history. He was the forgotten freedom fighter who hoisted the flag on the Secretariat building.

Bihar's Role in India's Independence

Bihar had tremendously contributed to the facets and phases of the National Movement in its chequered history of progress, stress and strains and persistent march forward despite repression and oppressive measures of an aggressive and formidable imperialism. The Non-cooperation and the civil disobedience are two imperishable landmarks in the course of the movement which focus attention on sundry factors and circumstances shaping numerous trends and facts, movements and ideologies that led to the sequence of causation and effect in the course of the self expression, self-determination and self-attainment of glorious and great nation. In all these movements the people of Bihar actively participated and they implemented the decision of the Congress in Bihar immediately. In this period the people of Bihar showed unprecedented fraternization in the field of political activities.

The history of modern political awakening among the people of Bihar was accompanied by a series of political events leading to the liberation of India from the British rule. The Kol 4 insurrection in 1831-33 in Chotanagpur . The Patna conspiracy of 1846, and the Santhal insurrection of 1855-57 , are noteworthy In the revolt of 1857-59 Bihar played a very significant role under the inspiring leadership of Babu Kunwar Singh, Araar Singh, Sheikh Bhikhari, Peer Ali, Rabat All, Peer Bakah and others who had carried the message of the movement inside and outside Bihar very successfully . The revolt of 1857 was a mass movement with popular support of the Sepoys and peasants both Hindus and Muslims, who carried out the movement to every nook and corner of Bihar John Kaye believed that the prime movers in the rebellion of 1857 were the Muslims while Brown held that they were mostly people of Patna who aimed at overthrowing the British Government from India and wanted to re-establish the Muslim rule in India .

Freedom Movement in Bihar

Bihar the ancient land of Buddha has witnessed the golden period of Indian hinds. It is the same land where the seeds of the first republic were sown and which cultivated the first crop of democracy. Such fertile is the soil that has given birth to in numerous intellectual which spread the light of knowledge and wisdom not only in the country but in the whole world.

Modern History

During most of British India, Bihar was a part of the Presidency of Bengal and was governed from Calcutta. As such this was a territory very much dominated by the people of Bengal. All leading educational and medical centres were in Bengal. In spite of the unfair advantage that Bengalis possessed some sons of Bihar rose to positions of pertinence by dint of their intelligence and hard labour. One such was Dr. Rajendra Prasad, native of Tirade,, in the district of Saran. He became the first President of the Republic of India.

When separated from the Bengal Presidency in 1912, Bihar and Orissa comprised a single province. Later, under the Government of India Act of 1935, the Division of Orissa became a separate province and the Province of Bihar came into being as an administrative unit of British India. At independence in 1947, the State of Bihar, with the same geographic boundary formed a part of the Republic of India, until 1956. At that time, an area in the South-east predominantly the district of Purulia was separated and incorporated into West Bengal as part of the Linguistic Reorganization of Indian States.

Champaran Satyagrah (Civil Disobedience Movement)

Champaran Satyagrah was the India's first civil disobedience movement. Resurgence in the history of Bihar came during the struggle for Indian independence. It was Bihar from where Mahatma Gandhi launched his civil disobedience movement which ultimately led to India's Independence.

Champaran is a district in the state of Bihar. Under Colonial era laws, many tenant farmers were forced to grow some indigo r a portion of their land as a condition of their tenancy. This indigo was used to make dye. The Germans had invented a cheaper artificial dye so the demand for indigo fell. Some tenants paid more rent in return for being let off having to grow indigo. However, during the First World War the German dye ceased to be available and so indigo became profitable again. Thus many tenants were once again forced to grow it on a portion of their land- as was required by their lease. Naturally, this created much anger and resentment.

#Azadi Ka Amrit Mahotsav

Jai Prakash Narayan's Movement

It was natural; therefore, that many people from Bihar became leading participants in India's struggle for independence. Dr. Rajendra Prasad has been mentioned above. Another was Jay Prakash Narayan, affectionately called JP. JP's substantial contribution to modern Indian history continued up until his death in 1979. It was he who led a movement that led to massive win of a non-Congress government -The Janata Party — at Delhi, for the first time. With the blessings of JP, Morarji Desai became the fourth Prime Minister of India. Sadly, soon after attaining power, bickering began among the leaders of the Janata Party which led to the resignation of Mr. Desai as the Prime Minister. JP continued with his call for 'total revolution', but he succumbed to kidney failure at a hospital in Bombay in 1979. Subsequent bickering in the Janata Party led to the formation of a breakaway political party — the Janata Dal. This political party was a constituent unit of the then ruling coalition at Delhi, the so called, United Front.

This was also a period when Hindi literature came to flourish in the state. Raja Radhika Raman Singh, Shiva Pujan Sahay, Divakar Prasad Vidyarthi, Ramdhari Singh Dinkar, Ram Briksha Benipuri, are some of the luminaries who contributed to the flowering of Hindi literature, which did not have much of a long history. The Hindi language, certainly its literature, began around mid to late nineteenth century. It is marked by the appearance of Bhartendu Babu Harischandra (a resident of Varanasi in UP.) drama "Harischandre. Devaki Nandan Khatri began writing his mystery novels in Hindi during this time (Chandrakanta, Chandrakanta Santati, Kajarki Kothari, Bhootnath, etc.) He was born at Muzaffarpur in Bihar and had his earlier education there. He then moved to Tekari Estate in Gaya in Bihar. He later became an employee of the Raja of Benares (now Varanasi.) He started a printing press called "Lahari" which began the publication of a Hindi monthly, "Sudarsharn, in 1898. One of the first short stories in Hindi, if not the very first, was indumati- (Pundit Kishorilal Goswami, author) which was published in 1900. The collection of short stories -Rajaniaur Taare" (Anupam Prakashan, Patna, publishers) contains an extended history of the origin and evolution of the short story as a distinct literary form in the Hindi literature.

HOW A MITHILA PAINTING BY A COLOR BLIND ARTIST BROKE THE INTERNET AND BECAME SENSATION

"This #COVIDVaccination inspired #MithilaPainting from #Bihar serves both as social messaging and an artistic tribute to the frontline workers. Kudos to the artist for this striking visuals on canvas filled with versatility"~
Tweeted the Resident Commissioner

The painting made on corona vaccination is made by Kundan Kumar Roy of Samastipur that went viral from country to abroad, many IAS officers, journalists, ministers and eminent industrialists including Health Minister appreciated Bihar appreciated this brilliant art of the artist.

Let us tell you that Kundan Kumar Roy is color blind. They are not able to identify the colors, but the skill is such that they make the idols come alive with colors. The color is also herbal and eco friendly. Earlier, he has been honored by the Election Commission in Patna with a state level honor for his painting made to make voters aware on National Voters' Day.

Kudos to the artist for this striking visuals on canvas filled with versatility #CovidWarriors @incredibleindia @MinOfCultureGol

Colour-blindness has not deterred him from creating a colourful world of Madhubani paintings. He has come out with many pieces, including drawing themes from the speeches of PM Narendra Modi on the importance of vaccination in the fight against the Covid-19 pandemic. Kundan Kumar Roy, 35, is an MBA and a gifted sculptor as well. Congenitally colour-blind, he has created quite a sensation through his Madhubani paintings based on the PM's speeches, mainly, on the importance of face masks and vaccination.

The PM's first address to the nation on the eve of one-day 'Janata Curfew' last year became Roy's leitmotiv. (The New Indian Express)

Roy credits his late mother for inspiring him. "She wanted me to explore the world of colours — a challenge for me," he said. He is supported by his brother Chandan Kumar, sister Ankita and wife Sujata in filling colours on the paintings.
